FAQs

I was married in Victoria. Can I use the certificate we received on our wedding day as proof of my new surname to update my passport or driver licence?

No. You will usually need a standard marriage certificate issued by the Registry as proof of marriage and your new surname.

I was married overseas. Can I use my marriage certificate as proof of my new surname?

To prove you have a new surname you may need to apply to register a change of name with the Victorian Registry of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

I was married outside of Victoria. Which certificate do I need as proof of my new surname to update my passport or driver licence?

You will usually need a standard marriage certificate issued by the registry of the state or territory you were married in.

Note. It's best to check the requirements of the authority requesting your identification documents before you order a certificate.

Privacy

In line with the Information Privacy Act 2000, the Registry is collecting information in this form to determine your eligibility to obtain the requested certificate and to prevent fraud. A copy of the Registry's Privacy Policy is available at www.bdm.vic.gov.au
